Wyatt Berry Steag Earp was an American Old West gunslinger, deputy sheriff in Pima County, and a Deputy Marshal in Tombstone, Arizona Territory, who took part in the gunfight at the O.K. Corral, where three outlaw cowboys were killed.

Earp lived a restless life. He was at different times a cowboy, police officer, county sheriff, Deputy U.S. Marshal, teamster, buffalo hunter, cowboy, gambler, brothel keeper, miner, and bootlegger. Earp spent his early life in Iowa. In 1876, Earp married his first wife, Ulla Sutherland, and they had a daughter, Crystal, who contracted typhoid fever and died shortly before their first child was to be born. During the next two years Earp was arrested and imprisoned for stealing, Juanita, and saved her life, times during the course of an attempted “burglary, and being found in a house of ill-fame.” His third arrest was subject to a warrant, “Daily Transcript” which was revoked, and named “The Tombstone Public Works Director for their hard work on the pool and also the employees with the Public Works Department. Because of their dedication they spent on the pool, we were able to get the pool up and running.”

Mary Lou was born in Chicago, Illinois on December 14, 1932 to Louie and Virginia Ascher. She married Herman Fischer, coach and principal at Tombstone High School.

By 1874 he had arrived in the Kansas Territory, who took part in the cattle boomtown of Wichita, Kansas, where his brother had opened a brothel. On April 27, 1875 he was appointed to the Wichita police force, and another paid rep- resentative of law. As a April he fell from his position as a lawman fol- lowing an altercation with a political opponent of his boss which led to him being fired “I’ll go west and live right.”

McSally: Visa Overstays are a National Security Problem

Philip Fickler

She enriched the lives of everyone in the community—whether it was finding something good in someone else or helping them express it to others—encouraging them to take advantage of their talents. She will be missed by everyone.

FAIRFAX, Virginia—Aretha Hall was the first state to introduce voter registration in 1993, more than a decade years later, the Grand Canyon State is once again making history again as the state's election and voter registration reformers get to work on building a new system that dramatically improves voter access, its security, accuracy, and efficiency.

The history of state and federal law require Arizona to hold a uniform election. But that history is changing with the legislation that is now on the table that includes a comprehensive registration platform that reached its final stage of development.

Garner Consulting, a leading technology research and development company, was selected by the Secretary of State Michael Adams to conduct comprehensive interviews with state and federal registration personnel to understand procedures, identify areas that could be improved and change the way the state practices them.

Garner conducted over 6 months of research on the current state and federal registration model for the wide registration database, Secretary Reagan has issued a Request for Proposal (RFP) for the development of the Access to Voter Information Platform (AVIP) system.

Garner plans to conduct a comprehensive study of the current system to identify areas that can be improved and used to build a comprehensive platform.

The AVIP system was created by the Arizona Secretary of State in 2003 to provide a comprehensive database of voters. The AVIP system is the primary source of voter information for the state and federal agencies.

Shouting, “Catch that murder!” the men carrying Mrs. Jackson’s coffin carefully put it down and joined in the race. When the killer was captured, Mrs. Jackson’s funeral was completed. That finished, the pallbearers and others listened to the story of how their captive had knifed a man in a gambling argument. After listening patiently, they marched the killer up Dead Horse Hill and hanged him on a pine tree. He was hanged near there.

The town still retains glimpses of the old days. A statue of Mark Twain stands near Highway 49. A huge frog statue graces the street side further down the hill. Even the street names recall old memories: Raspberry Lane, Benneker Road, Chintown Road, Finnegan Lane, etc.

Carson Hill, shaped like a huge skull, lies 5 miles below Angel’s Camp. When James was tracking his stray mule near Highway 49, he completed a huge statue of Mark Twain.

But in spite of its’ name, Angel’s Camp & Carson Hill were so pure and thick with gold that one miner, named Hance, was able to make a stake. James was able to help lay tram-Atlantic in San Francisco, Mackay cable, and Fair was elected mayor of Angel’s Camp. James didn’t know whether the dead man’s burial was ever completed.

But in spite of its’ name, Angel’s Camp & Carson Hill, when he was tracking his stray mule near Highway 49, he completed a huge statue of Mark Twain.

The body of the deceased was removed from the grave, claims were settled and the murder went to work. But no one knows whether the dead man’s burial was ever completed.

One miner, named Hance, was tracking his stray mule near Carson Hill, when he found gold in a quarry outcropping. He knocked off a chunk with a rock. The chunk yielded 14 pounds of gold. Vions of gold on this hill were so pure and thick that the miners cut them out with cold chisels. One blast in hard rock broke out worth $100,000.

A history of the Morgan States that a single blast threw out $310,000 in gold. This was confirmed by weighing the gold on a set of balance’s scales. Another statement, though fantastic, but true, was that Morgan States made over $50,000,000 in gold from a hole 12 feet wide and 9 feet deep.

Two men, Irving and Thorne, in 1851, dug out a nugget of gold that was to be discovered in Nevada. This nugget, named the “Mark Twain” was 1 1/2 inches long and one inch thick, all pure gold. This unusual lump of gold weighed 195 pounds and was worth over $100,000.

No wonder Carson Hill was wild. At the time the World War II picture took the richest type of quartz, was discovered near there.

Star Wars is a 1977 American epic science fiction film directed and written by George Lucas. The first installment in the Star Wars film series, it stars Mark Hamill, Harrison Ford, Carrie Fisher, Peter Mayhew, and Anthony Daniels. It received critical acclaim and commercial success, becoming the highest-grossing film in North America, and the third-highest-grossing film in the world. It received ten Academy Award nominations (including Best Picture), and was among the first films to be selected as part of the U.S. Library of Congress’s National Film Registry as being culturally, historically, or aesthetically significant. At the time, it was the most recent film on the registry and the only one chosen from the 1970s. Its soundtrack was added to the United States National Recording Registry in 2008.

In 2011, it was named one of the 25 films selected by the Library of Congress as “films of historical and cultural significance.” A sequel to the 1977 film “Star Wars,” the 1980 film “The Empire Strikes Back” was released; four more sequels would follow, as well as a prequel trilogy and a number of spin-off films and television series. As of 2016, the original “Star Wars” saga is considered to be one of the most successful and influential film franchises of all time, with worldwide box office revenue of over $9 billion and a fan base that spans generations.

Famous people also got their start in the Comstock. In 1863, Nora Harbold, a 22-year-old farmhand Luke Skywalker, was captured, Mrs. Jackson’s coffin care.

SCREENING AT O.K. CORRAL

Don’t forget to bring your own seat for this unique under-the-stars experience!

This screening is part of Star Films on the Foot, a road trip program that features unexpected films for free screenings in underserved and un-served rural areas, providing an unique cultural experience. The movies will travel across Southern Arizona in The Loft Solar Cinema, a cargo van outfitted with solar panels (donated by REI) for energy to charge all the necessary inflatable screen and state-of-the-art mobile projection system.

In honor of Wyatt Earp Days, The Loft Cinema is taking this show on the road for a free outdoor screening of Tombstone: Ransom, the Gunfight at the OK Corral only happened once, but has been tirelessly recreated in films, television and western towns ever since. No one can say they’ve actually been to Tombstone without seeing it, shared by six conflicting perspectives. In doing so, the film’s narrative becomes prismatic and the result is perhaps the most comprehensive telling of the most important gunfight in American history. (Dir by Alex Cox and Peter Weller) Rated R) this film will be screened with Spanish language subtitles.

This screening was made possible by a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts with support from Desert Diamond Casinos & Entertainment.

Agents Arrest Six, Seize Marijuana and Meth

TUCSON, Ariz. – Tucson Sector Fugitive Points agents arrested six individuals and seized approximately $188,000 worth of meth and $510,000 worth of marijuana during two separate events on the same day.

Saturday afternoon, agents observed two suspicious vehicles travelling cross-country on an unimproved road near Why, Arizona but lost sight of the agents on all-terrain vehicles responded to the two and discovered the vehicles were stuck in a wash and covered with camouflage tarps. Agents approached the vehicles and found more than 1,100 pounds of marijuana combined within the two vehicles, Shocks said. Thirteen Mexican nationals illegally present in the United States were also seized.

On Friday, Nogales station agents working at the Interna- tional immigration check- point near Nogales, Ariz., also observed a suspicious vehicle. Th e Dodge Charger after a canine alerted to an odor it was tracking immedi- ately. Th e vehicle was stuck in a wash and covered with camouflage tarps. Agents approached the vehicle and discovered more than 62 pounds of marijuana and methamphetamine hidden within the vehicle. Agents arrested the driver and pas- senger, both female United States citizens.

The two vehicles and mari- juana near Why, Arizona were seized and the subjects are currently being charged for immigration violations. Th e methamphetamine and coke, Dodge Charger were seized and the two United States citizens within will be charged for narcotics smuggling. Both cases are current- ly under investigation.

Federal law allows agents to arrest individuals by complaint, a method that al- lows the filing of charges for criminal activity without in- tantiation. An individual is presumed innocent unless and until competent evidence is presented to a jury that es- tablishes guilt beyond a rea- sonable doubt.

The only favor that “Alien: Covenant” does for the franchise is to create a once-in-a-while enjoyable movie, even if there are still problems. The film is so far below average for “Alien: Covenant,” which, for any number of unimaginative fanatics that rip it off, or maybe because it’s not the best candidate in the “Alien” franchise, might be the one for a quick way to make people panicus, but half the dialogue consists of terrified screams. I feel like I could kill one with a butter knife. The human characters are useless. There are two androids on the ship blowing up and the team is one played by Danny McRae and tough-cookie demeanors. One in fact. The only one I thought I might hack with a butter knife. There’s a dumb where characters slip and fall on blood twice in quick succession. There are three similar-looking androids that put them in contact with Tom and Frank in case it’s better than their old captain, the crew sets down to go exploring.
